

Dead malls can give you a weird feeling, since malls are usually filled with people. They are the most popular source of liminal space images.

This would have been a good image if there were no people on it.